

Dr. Sohini Dhar completed her dental education in India, where she practiced general dentistry for several years. After moving to the United States, she continued her education in dentistry and public health. Dr. Dhar received a Master of Public Health degree from University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston, School of Public Health and completed her residency in Dental Public Health from the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio (UTHSCSA), School of Dentistry. Dr. Dhar is a Diplomate of the American Board of Dental Public Health and is a Board-Certified Public Health Dentist. Dr. Dhar is also inducted as a Fellow of International College of Dentists (ICD) USA Section.

At present Dr. Dhar is works as an Assistant Professor at UTHSCSA, School of Dentistry. She is also an Adjunct Faculty at AT Still University. In previous jobs she worked at Harris County Public Health, University of Washington School of Dentistry, NYU-Langone Dental Medicine, American Institute of Dental Public Health, and MD Anderson Cancer Center.

Dr. Dhar is an active member and leader within several national and state-level professional organizations, like the American Association of Public Health Dentistry (AAPHD), Texas Oral Health Coalition (TxOHC), and Texas Public Health Association (TPHA). She is also a reviewer at American Journal of Public Health (AJPH) and BMC-Oral Health.

Dr. Dhar lives in San Antonio with her husband. They both like travelling and spending time in outdoor activities. In her leisure time Dr. Dhar loves to learn how to cook food from different cuisines and explore her amateur painting skills.